In conversation with some of Manchester's musical legends.

Stephen Morris has had an illustrious career spanning over 30 years, as a pivotal member of Joy Division and New Order with his trademark machine-line drumming that seamlessly wove with the bands' drum machine sounds. Now New Order are back with a new album Music Complete, released on 25 September, which sees Peter Saville back on artwork duties and the band showing their loyalty to the dancefloor.

Jon Drape is a leading figure in the UK live industry and responsible for some of the biggest festivals and events across the world including Snowbombing, Festival No6, The Warehouse Project and Manchester's Parklife. Jon will be appearing with writer, journalist, DJ and creative producer Luke Bainbridge, talking about their work putting together the creative triumph that is Festival No 6.

This evening gives you the opportunity to discover the people and process behind the work.
